Exploring Midrash
Zoom Lecture Time: Wednesday 1:45-2:30 PM
Optional Beit Midrash/Office hours Monday 1:45-2:30 PM

Course Description:
This course will provide an overview of the wide range of midrashic literature to familiarize students with the historical background, literary styles, and functions of various types of midrashim and midrashic collections and their relationship with Mikra. We will cover both Midrash Halakhah (legal) and Midrash Aggadah (homiletic), analyzing their style and form through hands-on assignments. In addition to textual study and analysis of midrashic selections, conceptual issues related to the study of midrash will be addressed, such as: The role of homiletics in the religious experience; the ‘problem’ of polysemy (a text with multiple interpretations); and the parameters of literal vs. allegorical readings. In conjunction with these overarching questions, we will survey the historical reception of Midrash and the use of Midrash in Torah commentaries from Chazal to modern collections like Hayim Nahman Bialik. Finally, our hope is to explore and rediscover the comforting messages and lessons the Sages imparted to the generations through their homilies.

Course Objectives:
• Students will gain an appreciation of the historical background of various midrashic collections and their literary structures.
• Students will understand the structure of the Midrash and its relationship to the text of the Torah. They will be able to dissect and analyze paragraphs of Midrash Aggadah on their own and will have the skills to prepare their own presentations of midrashic texts.
• Students will appreciate the role of Mashal (parables) and allegory in Midrash and the nature of the extra-biblical stories.
• Students will gain historical perspective of the reception and controversies surrounding Aggadot in the Midrash and Talmud from medieval to modern times.

Course Requirements:
Discussion/Participation: 10%

Attendance Policy and Class Structure:
This course will run remotely for the entire semester with both synchronous and asynchronous components. There will be live mandatory meetings on Wednesdays 1:45 - 2:30 PM and optional meetings on Mondays 1:45 - 2:30 PM, which will serve as office hours and Chavruta time. Your participation and discussion grade will be factored based on your attendance on Canvas/Zoom during our live mandatory meetings.

Guide to Synchronous Learning: Every student is expected to attend the class meetings through Canvas/Zoom and to participate in readings or class discussions that take place therein. Your cameras should be turned on throughout the meeting time, with no distracting backgrounds please. Additionally, I respectfully request that you leave your cameras on, even if you need to briefly step away from the computer. Contact me if you are having technical difficulties so that your lack of video or sound is not misunderstood as inattentiveness.

Our live meetings will be abbreviated to help you avoid Zoom fatigue but are a crucial component of your learning and really should not be missed as I do not intend to record these live meetings. While I understand that there may be circumstances that require you to miss class please be sure to let me know in advance, if possible, and absence due to non-pressing issues (medical or familial emergencies) will affect your participation grade.

Asynchronous Learning may include assigned readings, text preparation, short lecture videos and comprehension questions.

Readings:
All primary and secondary readings will be provided on Canvas.

Academic Integrity and Honesty:
All students are expected to follow and abide by the academic integrity and honesty policies of Yeshiva University in this course.
