SCHEDULE OF COURSES
Courses that are starred (*) do not require Hebrew

9:00am-10:40am Dr. Debra Kaplan (Bar Ilan University)

JHI 6391 Print Culture and the Jewish World, 1450-1800 (CRN 80482)

What is a Jewish book? Books read by Jews encompassed a wide range of text, and the content and materiality of these texts changed over time. In this course we will focus on the early modern period, when the printing press first developed, and the tremendous impact that this new "print culture" had on Jewish life, learning, and communities. Topics include the shift from manuscript to print, the printing of the Talmud, male and female literacy, new religious and vernacular texts, censorship, life in the print shop, translations, Christian Hebraism, and the development of an "international" Jewish community of readers.

11:00am-12:40pm Dr. Shana Schick (Bar Ilan University)

TAS 5804 Talmud Yerushalmi and Bavli – Development and Methodology (CRN 80484)

This course is devoted to the relationship between the Talmuds Yerushalmi and Bavli as discussed in modern scholarship. Through critical analyses of several parallel sugyot, we will explore how the Bavli reworks Yerushalmi sources, to what extent the Talmud Yerushalmi was available to the Babylonian Sages, and how material from each locale was incorporated in the other Talmud. We will also uncover how the two talmuds differ in terms of terminology, methodology, and jurisprudence and consider the source for these differences, including the role of the Bavli's redactors as well as the divergent cultural contexts of Greco-Roman Palestine and Sasanian Iran.

6:00pm-7:40pm Dr. Shalom Holtz

BIB 7720 Book of Amos (CRN 80480)

A study of the Book of Amos that introduces students to modern historical and philological methods of biblical exegesis. Class discussions will focus on reading and interpreting the text itself, as well as on important broader topics that emerge from secondary literature.

7:50pm-9:30pm Dr. Alexander Green (SUNY University at Buffalo)

JPH 6205* Visions of the Just Society in Medieval Jewish, Christian and Islamic Philosophy (CRN 80483)

Medieval Jewish, Christian and Islamic philosophers often interpreted their sacred texts as guidebooks for how to create the ideal society. In doing so, they each strove to delineate the nature of justice and how their particular religious law best serves to achieve it. Yet one must ask: how can their spiritual vision be brought into the real world, and would it even be desirable to do so? We will consider both the arguments for and against bringing together religion and politics, ending with Spinoza's case for the division of philosophy, religion and politics.

9:00am-10:40am Dr. Joseph Angel

BIB 5201* Beginners Biblical Hebrew I (CRN 80479)

This course introduces students to Standard Biblical Hebrew (SBH) and lays the foundation for direct study of the Hebrew Bible. Working systematically through a textbook, students are introduced to the alphabet and vowel system and to the basic elements of the language, grammar, and vocabulary of the Hebrew Bible. By the end of the course, students will have studied numerous samples of biblical texts and be able to read, analyze and understand a number of biblical narrative passages.

All classes will meet on Yeshiva University's Zoom platform
